Welcome from President MacDonald

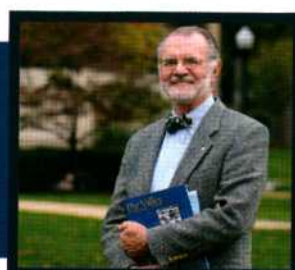

Dear Reader:

Welcome to this year's edition of the Quittapahilla, Lebanon Valley College's Yearbook for 2012. I hope you find this year's version of the Yearbook as interesting and exciting as I do. These pages capture the people and places and events of this dynamic College; they will help us all recall moments over the past years that marked the passage of the class of 2012 from its first tentative days on campus to its concluding celebrations. I'm particularly conscious of the timeliness of this passage since it marks my final year as president of LVC. I look back with satisfaction and pleasure at my 14 years at the Valley—the last 8 as president—and know that the images in this Yearbook recall for me as well an extraordinarily important episode in my life. So as we all go on to life beyond and after the Valley, we'll remember our time here with gratitude and delight.

Stephen C. MacDonald
President

Thank You, President MacDonald

Steve MacDonald has been a first-rate Dean of the Faculty and an outstanding President. Among his many accomplishments as Dean, he proposed our very successful First-Year Seminar program, he appointed a full-time Director of the Writing Center, he encouraged pedagogical experiments such as team-teaching, and he helped to create the Digital Communications program. When the Physical Therapy program was initially denied candidacy status, he made himself an expert on accreditation standards, and then worked alongside our Physical Therapy faculty to ensure that our program became the fully accredited and highly successful program that it is today. He was a hands-on Dean brimming with intellectual energy and high expectations, and he was a gifted teacher himself, who taught a very popular First-Year Seminar on American film.

As President, Steve oversaw major changes in the appearance of LVC: the demolition and rebuilding of the center of the Lynch building, as well as the demolition and rebuilding of the Garber Science Center even as we continued to hold classes and labs in various parts of the building. His other major building projects include the construction of Stanson Hall, the major renovation of the Mund College Center, and the meticulous and historically accurate restoration of the Humanities Building.

Despite the challenges posed by the Great Recession of 2008, Steve was able to increase financial aid and strengthen Admissions efforts in ways that brought in the largest entering classes in the college's history. All of us will remember the sweaters, the bow ties, the quick sense of humor, and perhaps his greatest legacy: the Adirondack chairs. We thank him for all that he has done for the College, and we wish him a wonderful retirement.

*Gary Grieve-Carlson
Professor of English*

President McDonald has been lauded for all of the great contributions he has made to LVC. The "bricks and mortar" upgrades to campus, the focus on upgrading our athletic fields, the beautification of our campus and his support for academic endeavors have all been noted. I would like to thank Dr. McDonald for all of these contributions to LVC and more.

I am grateful for the friendship and support he has extended to me throughout his tenure here as both the academic dean and the president of the school he obviously cares so much about. Thanks for all the conversations we have had about our favorite movies and actors, for listening to all of my stories about my son's baseball endeavors, and for the support you have given me as a faculty member here at LVC. Finally, thanks for all the early morning coffee you have provided! Best wishes for a happy and productive retirement.

*Carolyn Hanes
Professor of Sociology*

I believe that colleges reflect their presidents, and particularly so in the case of LVC and President MacDonald. I've seen LVC change so much over the years and I must say that it has changed decidedly for the better. The LVC of today is an exceedingly well-run institution with a vibrant enthusiasm and an underlying sense of joy – it is a place where students and faculty can thrive. Both as dean and as president, Steve MacDonald has nurtured this institution as one who came to love it as his own. President MacDonald's reliance on rational analysis, his genuine appreciation for our approach of grafting relevant professional programs into our liberal arts roots, and his determination to do the very best for each and every student, have informed and sharpened every decision he has made at LVC.

And what a place LVC has become! New major programs in art/art history, digital communications, and physical therapy have energized the academic curriculum; a new science building now combines functionality with a well-lighted, open design; ever-expanding student opportunities abound in areas as diverse as sports, drama, colloquium, music, internships, and now student-faculty collaborative projects; an efficient and welcoming center of student life now resides in the Mund College Center, and the inspiring architectural presence of the restored Humanities Center links us visually and emotively to our past.

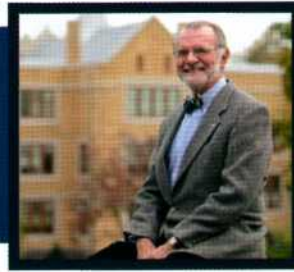

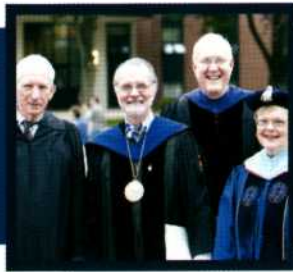

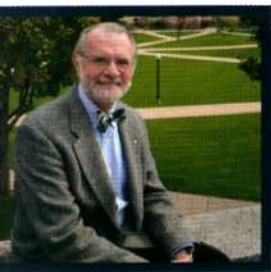

Beyond all that, President MacDonald has elegantly articulated who we are and who we want to become as an institution, through his talks at opening breakfasts and convocations, and through his leadership in the college's evolving strategic plan. I for one greatly appreciate Steve MacDonald's quiet and persistent work behind the scenes to build a college environment that frees and empowers us to learn and grow. Thank you, President MacDonald, for taking such good care of LVC.

*Owen Moe
Department of Chemistry*

I'm not sure how to imagine LVC without Steve MacDonald. He has been a source of stability amidst change, and of optimism and hope in uncertain times. I am profoundly grateful to have worked under Steve's guidance and wisdom. Thank you for your commitment to this community, Steve. We are a better place for the time you have shared with us.

*Kerrie Smedley
Associate Professor of Psychology*

The faculty, staff, and students of Lebanon Valley College's Doctor of Physical Therapy program will forever be indebted to President Stephen MacDonald for his unwavering support and guidance. President MacDonald has been a tireless advocate of the Physical Therapy program since he arrived on campus as the then Vice President for Academic Affairs and the Dean of the Faculty in 1998. As Dean MacDonald he oversaw the development of the Physical Therapy program through candidacy to successful initial accreditation in 2006 by the Commission on Accreditation in Physical Therapy Education (CAPTE) as the President of the College. Most recently he witnessed the full re-accreditation of the program in November, 2011.

President MacDonald's strong support of the physical Therapy faculty, staff, and students has allowed the Program to flourish. From the first even Doctor of Physical Therapy graduates in 2006 to the upcoming thirty plus 2012 graduates, he has been a strong supporter of student growth and development. He was instrumental in the development of the student-run "C.U.R.E." (Compassionate Undenied Rehabilitation Experience) clinic which opened in Fall 2011 serving patients referred by the Lebanon Free Clinic and Volunteers in Medicine Free Health Clinic.

President MacDonald's support of the Physical Therapy Program did not stop at the steps of LVC. President MacDonald has championed the physical therapy profession through his service to the Commission, first as an on site reviewer for other physical therapy programs undergoing CAPTE accreditation, then as a member of the PT Panel and finally the Central Panel. Even in his retirement he will continue his commitment to the profession with CAPTE as an on-site reviewer.

We wish you the best as you embark on your retirement. Thank you for all you have done for the College and the Doctor of Physical Therapy Program and profession.

Steve has been a wonderful dean and president, and will be deeply missed. He has been both a consolidator and a builder. His academic achievements range from the introduction of a robust first-year seminar program to the successful accreditation of the physical therapy program. As president, he also oversaw the renovation and construction of numerous projects – from the Humanities Building to the Neidig-Garber Science Center as well as the Lynch Memorial Hall and the new Mund College Center.

From a personal perspective, there are only a handful of people I have known over my academic career whom I listen to carefully for reasoned insight, and Steve is one of them. There have been several times during his tenure at LVC when I was most impressed by his leadership. Two, especially, stand out for me.

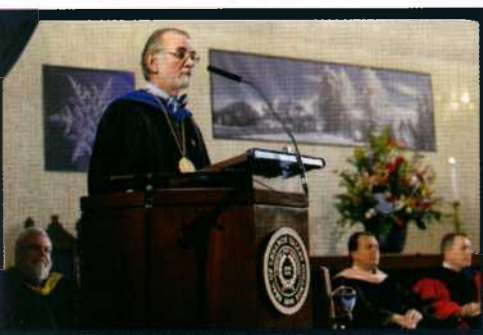

First, I vividly remember when he became president in 2004 and the vision for LVC that he presented to the faculty and Board of Trustees – one that has been placed into the Strategic Plan of the College. He called upon us "to aspire to be the best regional liberal arts and pre-professional and professional college in Pennsylvania." This demanding, realistic vision, based on Lebanon

Valley's long history and mission, provided a map for moving ahead and honored the true essence of the College. Steve's vision was truly a breath of fresh air given the uncertainty and confusion of the preceding eight years.

Second, I admired Steve's leadership and steady hand during the national financial crisis that began in 2008. He made sure that students who needed financial assistance received it and that no faculty and staff were laid off. It was quite a different situation at other colleges and universities, both regionally and around the country.

I believe Steve's leadership and integrity will be remembered for years to come and he will take his place among the great deans and presidents of LVC. As a trained historian, he should take immense pleasure in that legacy.

*Michael Day
Professor of Physics*

particular community. Our promise is that we can provide a truly world-class liberal arts education deliberately integrated into a whole range of professional and pre-professional academic programs for deserving students who might otherwise not have the means or opportunities to attend the more costly, or more widely-known, alternatives. I hope and trust this vision for our noble purpose remains in place even as President MacDonald's stewardship of this place gives way to his successor.

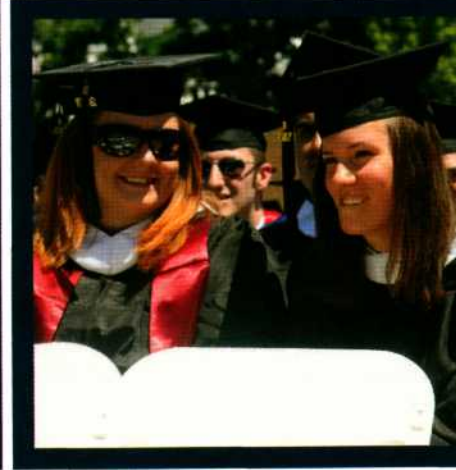

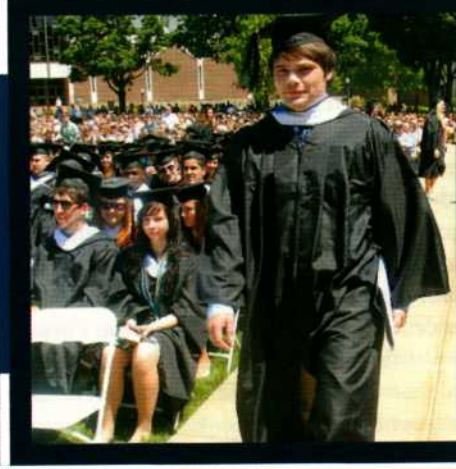

Thank you Stephen.

*Dr. Jeffrey W. Robbins
Associate Professor and Chair of Religion and Philosophy*

It will always be my honor to say that I was hired to Lebanon Valley College by Stephen MacDonald. At the time, he was dean of the faculty. He sold me then on the vision of this particular college with its particular strengths and history as being not simply a good place to land a job, but more significantly, a worthy job where I could meaningfully invest my energy, my education, and my expertise.

It is thanks to Stephen MacDonald that I first came to LVC as a young faculty member fresh out of graduate school, full of energy and fresh ideas. It is also thanks to Stephen MacDonald that I have remained here. I have been empowered thanks to Steve's confidence in me as a professional. I have depended on his integrity. And I have been inspired by his words at his inauguration as president that our job here at LVC is to provide a safe environment for our students to encounter challenging, disturbing, maybe even unsafe, ideas.

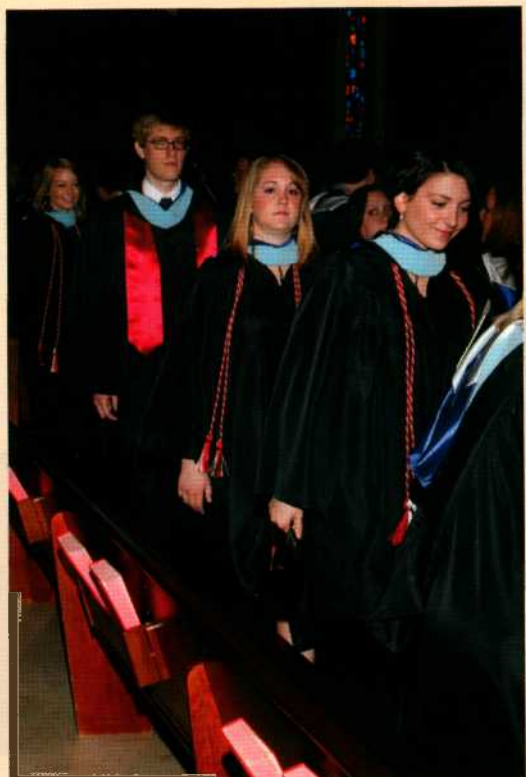

President MacDonald has helped me learn the important lesson of the nobility of purpose to LVC's place in the higher education landscape. We have a proud and distinctive history. We are of a particular place and

MARCH TO KREIDERHEIM

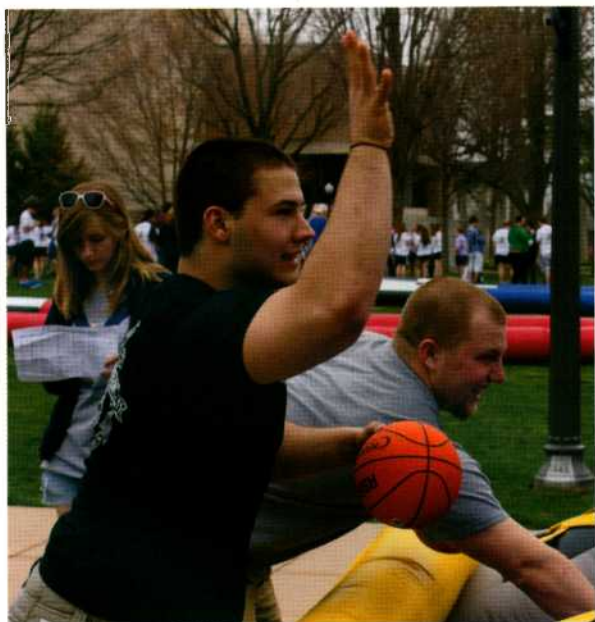

On October 13, 2011, a couple hundred students walked to the president's house to take part in an LVC tradition that goes back to the 1940's. The March to Kreiderheim takes place every year LVC's football team beats Albright in their rivalry game. This year students petitioned for a extra day off during Thanksgiving break. This request was approved by President MacDonald.

DUTCHMEN DAY

On March 22nd, LVC celebrated its 10th annual Dutchmen Day, a student-initiated event first held in spring 2002. As always, students woke up on the surprise Dutchmen Day to find that classes had been cancelled and replaced with a full day of fun events involving the entire campus community.

VALLEYFEST

Alora Manwiller

Jessica Boyd, Haivy Luu

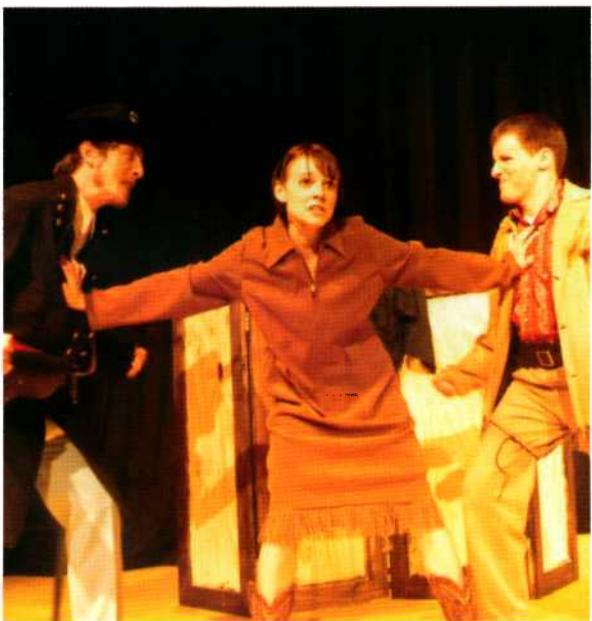

ValleyFest is Lebanon Valley College's annual spring arts festival, which is almost completely student run and planned. ValleyFest 2012 was held from April 20-21, and in addition to student performers, also included bands such as Small Town Titans and Secondhand Serenade.

ACTIVE MINDS

Active Minds' goal is to increase student awareness of mental health issues on LVC's campus. They want to remove the stigma surrounding mental health issues. Active Minds provides information and resources about mental health and illness, encourages students to seek help as soon as it is needed, and serves as a link between students and the mental health community.

ANIME CLUB

Anime Club is a new social club looking to share their insight of anime with other college students. Throughout the year, they have held many events including video game tournaments, have colalborated with Child's Play, an organization that seeks to improve the lives of children in hospitals through video games and plan to attend Otakon this summer.

MATH CLUB

Math Club is an academic and social group dedicated to spreading an appreciation for mathematics to students at the college, high school and elementary level. Math club connects students through a variety of events including the Math Olympics, the Math Quiz Bowl and various socials.

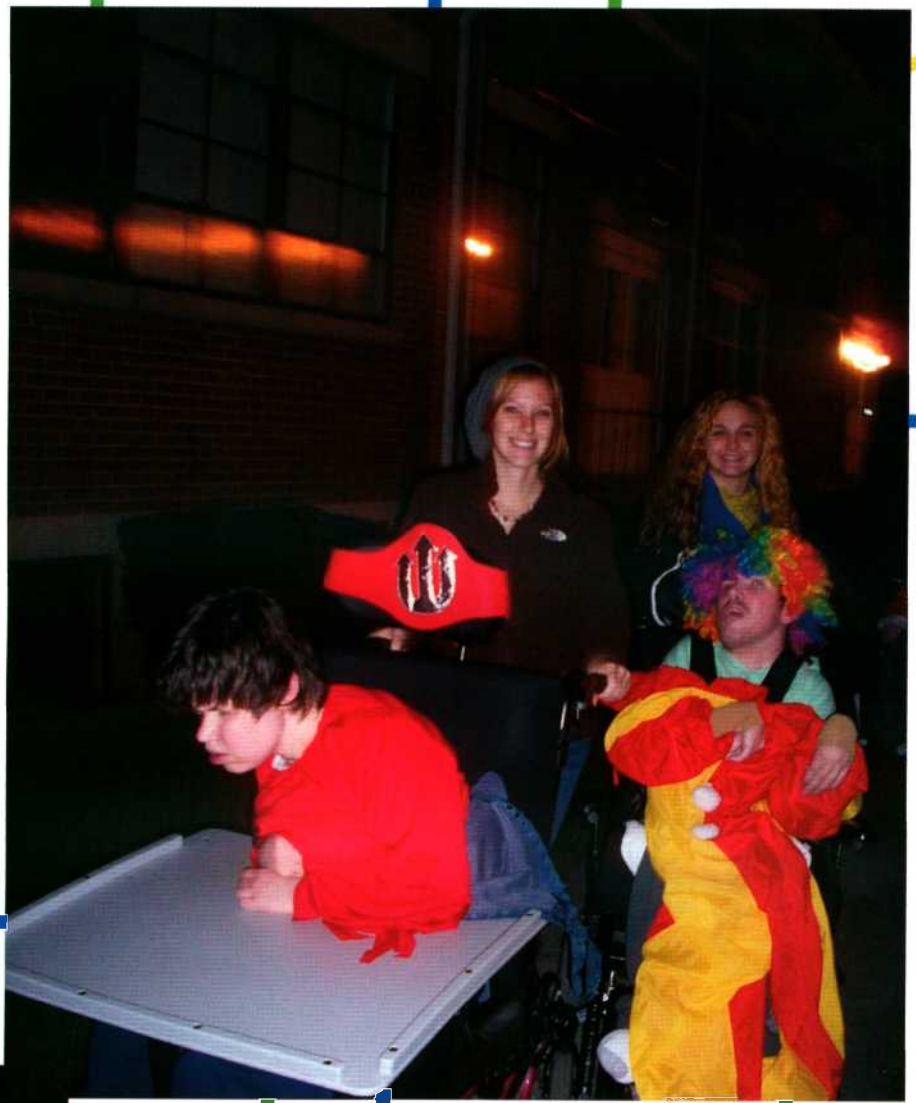

PSYCHOLOGY CLUB

Karly Siffin '14, Chloe Tarson '14, Kaylin Honchar '14, Jordan Neidig '14, Katie Dorman '14, Jena Bogovich '14, Megan Kemmler '14, Katelyn Mackey '14, Julia Dunn '14, Megan Santaniello '12, Maurissa Laudeman '13

Psychology Club is open to any student interested in the field or psychology, but its members consist mostly of students majoring or minoring in psychology or psychobiology. This club gives students the opportunity to socialize together, discuss psychological issues, attend the Eastern Psychological Association Conference, participate in community service, and share ideas on various campus-related topics.

STUDENT PENNSYLVANIA STATE EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

ANIA

SPSEA is the education club on campus; they are the student branch of PSEA. Open to all education majors on campus, they work on professional development through the use of speakers who are experts in their topics. Their huge activity is Children's Day which occurred on April 27th. This is a day when the local students from Annville Elementary come on to our campus and SPSEA plans a fun filled day for them. This gives them the opportunity to design our own lesson plans that they can use in their portfolios. They also take part in the celebration of reading which is a region wide thing in SPSEA. SPSEA celebrates Dr. Suess's Birthday by choosing one of his books to design an activity off of. Children come to all the different hooths and are able to read the stories and complete the activities. Other colleges that partake in this are Millersville, Messiah and Elizabethtown.

PHYSICAL THERAPY CLUB

Physical Therapy Club is made up of students in the undergraduate and graduate phases of the PT program. The club provides members with a great opportunity to get involved at LVC, especially within the Physical Therapy major. The club has participated in a number of community events and at the same time has worked towards developing the professional goals of its members.

UNITED HISPANOS ALLIANCE

Any student interested in the Spanish language and culture may join the United Hispanos Alliance. Students do not need to know or speak Spanish to enjoy membership with the club. The club sponsors dancing lessons such as salsa and flamenco and trips such as to a local Puerto Rican bakery. They also participate in the annual International Culture Day.

LA VIE COLLEGIENNE

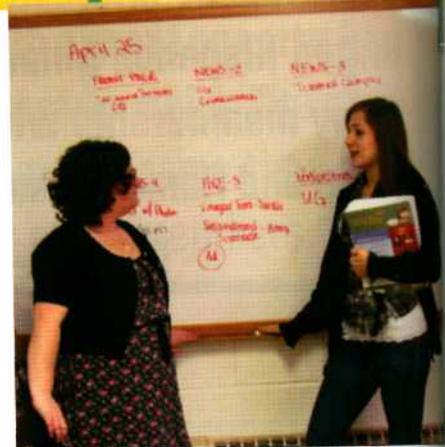

John Englebert '13, Dan Callahan '14, Roger Van Scyoc '12, Nick Thrailkill '14, Brittney Falter '15, Nikki Wilhelm '15, Sarah Marino '13, Nicki Shepski '15, Rosemary Bucher '14, Justin Roth '14

Staff Writer Roger Van Scyoc usually writes perspective pieces for La Vie.

La Vie proudly displays their hard work on the walls of the office; this year both Co-Editors Rosemary and Justin won Keystone Press Awards for their efforts.

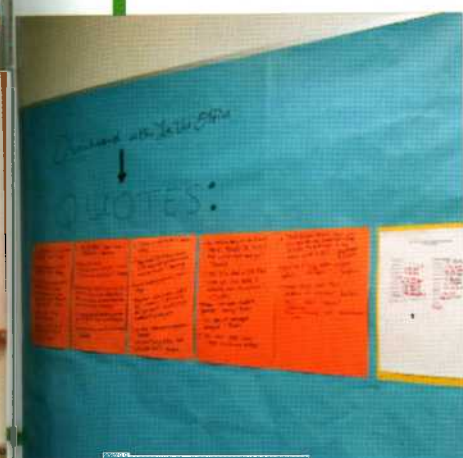

Co-Editors are always available for help in case any staff member needs it.

La Vie Collegienne is a respected award-winning newspaper founded in 1924. La Vie strives to provide fair and balanced news coverage of events concerning both LVC and the Annville community. It is entirely staffed by students and allows for staff members to gain experience in journalistic work. The newspaper is available in both print and online editions.

Co-Editor Rosemary Boyer discusses what will go in the issue for the week of May 2nd with the staff.

La Vie's quote wall displays unforgettable things people have said throughout the year.

Arts and Entertainment Editor Sarah Marino asks questions about her article for the week.

Justin Roth, Co-Editor, comments on a staff member's idea for a story.

Cornerstone is the Christian Fellowship group for LVC that organizes fun events on Friday nights. Some of these events include the fall and winter retreats, pizza and volleyball, hayride, lazer tag, bowling, ice skating, and more! This groups promotes unity within the community and gives an opportunity for fun times and good fellowship.

Freshmen Christabelle Braden and Emily Johansen stepped up to the plate to get lunch ready for Cornerstone at the winter retreat

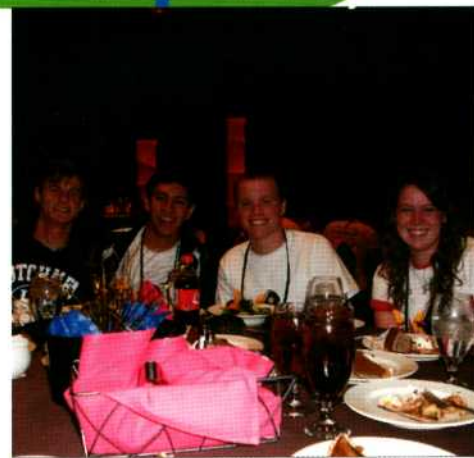

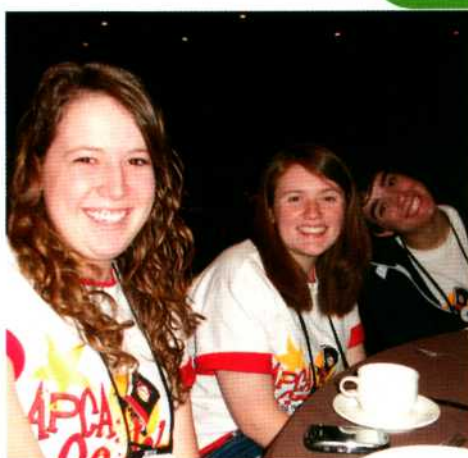

STUDENT PROGRAM BOARD

ING

Student Programming Board is student-run and organizes campus-wide events, including the Coffeehouse series, the Friday night comedians and performers, and the Saturday Redbook events. Members have the opportunity to travel to a conference once a semester to watch performers. After the conference, students select the most entertaining acts that they would like to bring to campus.

Students gather before the Opening Ceremony

Relay For Life is a life-changing event that helps communities across the globe celebrate the lives of people who have battled cancer, remember loved ones lost, and fight back against the disease. Almost every student on LVC's campus is affected in some way by cancer. Relay for Life's goal to create a world where this deadly disease has no power. Each year LVC's Relay For Life hopes to get the student body and faculty as well as the community involved in an all-nighter fundraiser that supports the American Cancer Society in their search for a cure against cancer. Students create teams, fundraise before and during the event, and spend an entire night in Arnold's Sports Center walking around the track to show that cancer never sleeps and neither does Relay For Life.

Dear Ari,

As your time at LVC comes to a close, the successes that you have made are honored.

We are so proud of you and know your future is bright as you continue your education.

“To accomplish great things, we must not only act, but also dream; not only plan, but also believe.”

We love you very much.

Wally,

It seems like yesterday you were the little boy forecasting the weather and directing the Alumni Band. Now you have grown into an intelligent, talented, and hardworking young man. We are so proud of you, and all you have accomplished. Stay true to yourself, and you will continue to succeed in life.

Love you,

Mom and Dad

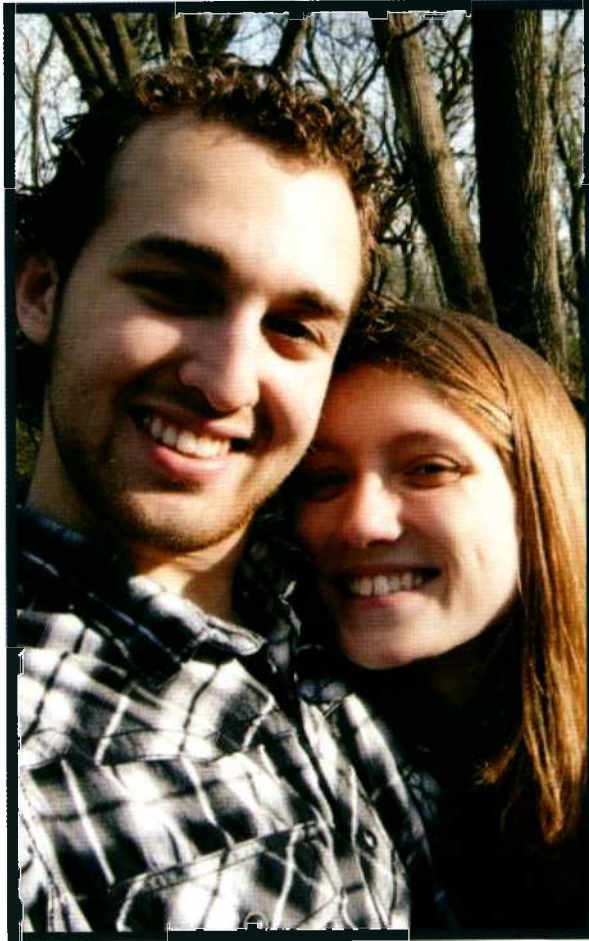

To: John Petruzzelli
